Doctoral workshop
"LIVING, PRAYING AND DYING IN AN ISLAND AND COASTAL SPACE BETWEEN THE 4TH AND THE 11TH CENTURY"
Zadar, Croatia, April 17-21, 2023

The ANR MONACORALE program, in collaboration with the École française de Rome, the University of Zadar and the UMR Chrono-Environnement, ARTEHIS, HISOMA, Orient et Méditerranée, is organising a doctoral workshop at the University of Zadar (Croatia), April 17-21 2023.

The purpose of this workshop is to bring together doctoral students or post-doctoral students (who have defended their thesis within the last 5 years) and researchers around historical and archaeological questions concerning religious and funerary issues, economies, the environment, land occupation and settlement, material culture, etc. These approaches will be specific to island and coastal areas, from Late Antiquity to the Middle Ages.

This meeting will be resolutely interdisciplinary, allowing for data comparison and perspective from disciplines as distinct as archival studies, archaeology, geoarchaeology, landscape archaeology, art history, funerary anthropology, epigraphy, etc. The topics discussed will include historiographical issues, but will be based on recent research programs and ongoing doctoral or post-doctoral research. The researchers' contributions will focus on the Adriatic area, but from a methodological and comparative perspective with other coastal and insular areas, both Mediterranean and northern, which are being dealt with in the context of their doctoral work.

The doctoral workshop will take place in two parts:

1. Six half-days will be devoted to theoretical training; they will include general presentations by researchers (60 minutes) and the presentation of doctoral students' work (for 20 minutes).
2. Three half-days will be devoted to visiting Late Antique and medieval religious monuments and archaeological sites in and around Zadar.

The French School offers 12 scholarships to young researchers (doctoral and post-doctoral students from the European Community and other countries) who have carried out or are carrying out research work concerning the Adriatic area.

These grants cover only the costs of the stay in Croatia from Monday 17 April to Saturday 22 April 2023. Students are responsible for their own transport.

Applicants must send by e-mail, before 31 January 2023, to the address dirma@efrome.it a file consisting of :
- a letter of motivation
- a brief curriculum vitae specifying language skills and, if applicable, a list of publications
- a summary of the project (max. 2 pages, approx. 6000 characters)
- a letter of recommendation
Candidates will be selected by the scientific committee on the basis of their projects’ review. Award will be notified before March 11, 2023.

Successful applicants for the Workshop will be required to attend all sessions
